"Ships That Pass In The Night."

The Bell Buoy Sunk-The Kinau at Makaweli--Gaelic From Orient--Harbor Notes.

Four hours and a half after she anhored the steamer Gaelic was announced by the three whistles. She was discovered by Pilot Sanders, who went to the lookout of the pilot office very early in the morning. It was too dark for him to make out whether the large steamer outside was the Gaelic or not, but upon inquiry by telephone at the Custom house he found that the Coptic had left the evening before. He notified the postoffice and the Port Physician and they went out in the pilotboat. It was then found that the steamer had anchored before 2 o'clock. This is two out of three foreign steamers arriving within a week which have slipped past the lookout at Diamond Head, who is paid by the Government to report the arrivals of foreign vessels, and there is a good deal of kicking about the careless watch that is kept at night. The Gaelic left about 11 yesterday morning after landing about ten Chinese and Japanese and the mails. She took away ten bags of mall for the Coast.

Bell Buoy Sunk.

The bell buoy has been replaced by a red can buoy. The big bell buoy was found to be missing about a week ago and it is thought by some to have been sunk by one of the many vessels which lie outside at night.

The bell buoy first made its appearance in Hawaiian waters off the coast of Kauai about ten years ago. It had broken away from its mooring on the California coast and, driven by wind and sea, made its way here. Macaulay, at that time captain of the James Makee, passed it one night, but could not make out what it was. A few days later it was reported ashore on Kauai, between Waialua and Hanamaulu, and the Makee was sent after it and brought it here. It was sold by the Inter-Island people to the Hawaiian Government and has done duty ever since. As soon as possible the buoy will be raised and repaired and returned to its position.

NOTES.

The bark Edward May is still loading at Makaweli.

The Inter-Island wharf is now enclosed with the quarantine fence. The steamer Upolu arrived yesterday from Kona with a small mail. The Charles Nelson sailed from Makaweli on Sunday for San Francisco.

eau, from Hanamaulu, arrived yesterday with sugar. The weather on Kauai is reported good. The Waialeale, arriving yesterday, brought 2,400 bags sugar for C. Brewer & Co.; the Noeau 4,020 sacks sugar for H. Hackfeld & Co. The steamer Kinau arrived at Makawell on Sunday last at 6 a, m. She had a large cargo of general merchandise for different parts of Kauai. The Lehua, arriving yesterday, brought several passengers besides 2, 140 sacks of sugar, 25 head of cattle, 15 packages of sundries and 1 horse. The Inverness-shire, after waiting wo days for a favorable wind, got away yesterday with the assistance of the tug. She goes to Portland to load wheat for Europe. The steamer Bloemfontein, which is now on the way to Hilo, will discharge about 800 tons of freight there and then come here to discharge about 3,000 tons. She is due here about the

The Kaimiloa is fast nearing completion and when ready she will be a fine lighter. The three masts now in her will be removed and two very heavy ones from the wrecked Kilohana will be put in.

The Mikahala is to take the Mauna Loa's place again on the Kona-Kau run. There is not sufficient freight shipped at present to warrant the Inter-Island Company keeping the popular steamer in commission.

The Lehua, from Maui and Molokal arrived yesterday afternoon. She brought a lot of mail from the Coast for Hilo, which had arrived in the steamer Cleveland. The mail will be sent to Hawaii on the next steamer. Three sisters of charity, who boarded the Lehua at Molokai, were refused landing at Lahaina unless they got into a wagon immediately when they reached the shore to be taken outside the town limits. After a discussion, the ladies were taken to Kihel and landed without trouble.

The Rev. Dr. Wilton DeWitt Hyde, president of Bowdoin college, in a recent speech on trusts, said he favored a church trust to prevent rulnous competition of churches of the same de-
